

Domestic Violence: When the Circle is Broken

“We want to equip pastors to be aware of domestic violence in their congregations and how to talk about it in light of their faith.”

Dr. Susan Diamond
Pastor, First Christian Church

“Here in the Bible Belt, people first go to their church to seek help in times of trouble.”

Melissa Bowen
Legal Services Alabama

“We are very excited about this training opportunity for members of the clergy. As first responders to victims of domestic violence, it is very important they have information that will help keep families safe.”

Karen Sellers
Family Sunshine Center

“Only one in 10 domestic violence victims turns to their local shelters. However they will seek help in their faith community.”

Rev. Dr. Mark LaBranche
Huntingdon College
